

Island Health is Hiring Food Services Supervisors

Island Health is seeking Food Services Supervisors to join our team today.

Multiple casual opportunities are available across Vancouver Island, BC.

Are you an experienced Food Services professional looking for flexible work with plenty of perks? Apply today and connect with a recruiter to learn more about opportunities in Food Services with Island Health.

Food Services plays a vital role at Island Health, providing nourishing and balanced meals to patients every day and supporting our commitment to provide the highest quality health care services to the populations we serve. Supervisors are needed to oversee and participate in the delivery of food services, including supervising and coaching staff and maintaining departmental standards and procedures.

Our casual positions allow you to build a flexible schedule to suit your needs through our automated call-out shift system. You may choose to enrol in benefits and Municipal Pension Plan (once an initial period has passed), and you can participate in Island Health's Employee & Family Assistance Program and Preferred Purchasing Program.

You can work at multiple sites, build seniority, and get paid in lieu of statutory holidays and vacation time (paid at 12%). Apply today to continue the conversation about how we can match you to a casual position with a winning schedule and significant flexibility for your lifestyle. Join our Food Services team and help us create healthier, stronger communities. We want to hear from you!
